Welcome

to our new Expert Facilitator

Trish Coelho

Trish has spent her whole career as a teacher, principal, and system leader, bringing quality education to students living in regional and rural NSW. As the lead learner of many communities, she has a successful record in building the cultural capacity of all. She believes communities who establish a deep sense of shared purpose, ensure empowerment and shared ownership are successful in developing a healthy school culture. Her personal philosophy is that everyone leads and it is our responsibility to build the capacity of all stakeholders to go and be where they never thought they could.

Her ability to coach and mentor has enabled schools to thrive, set new directions and challenge the status quo, within an environment of positive risk taking. She is compassionate to the demands placed upon leaders and is a creative thinker in her problem-solving approach. As a Nationally Credited LEAD teacher, with a commitment to high performance, Trish works through leveraging the strengths of the professional capital of any organisation. As a long-standing member of NESA's Moderating and Consistency Committee, her work has ensured the highest of standards within schools and the development of teachers within NSW.

Trish gains most satisfaction when working within the school environment alongside staff and students, in bringing out the best of each community. This success is achieved by leading and supporting schools to embed a strong restorative ethos and authentic relational culture. Currently she is leading within a system of schools employing her expertise in coaching and leadership in advancing teacher quality to improve student wellbeing and achievement outcomes.
